What the Bible says about drugs and terrorism

The article below comes from the Daily Mail of January 6th. It highlights a link between drug-taking, wickedness, violence and terrorism.

The Muslim terrorists, ISIS, have shocked the world with their displays of barbaric cruelty toward innocent victims, kidnapped in order to induce appropriate responses to their demands from Western nations not to mention those they deem their enemies.

The act of cutting someone's throat in such a cold-blooded manner as the ISIS terrorists have done, can be done only under the influence of drugs, satanic possession or both!

The Word of God, always ahead of the events unfolding in these days, prior to the end of this age, refers to the use of drugs in three places.

- "Idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies," Galatians 5:20.
- "Neither repented they of their murders, nor of their sorceries, nor of their fornication, nor of their thefts," Revelation 9:21.
- "And the light of a candle shall shine no more at all in thee; and the voice of the bridegroom and of the bride shall be heard no more at all in thee: for thy merchants were the great men of the earth; for by thy sorceries were all nations deceived," Revelation 18:23.

In Galatians 5:20 we have part of a list of the works of the depraved nature of man. Amongst them is mentioned WITCHCRAFT. In Revelation 9:21 and 18:23 the same underlying Greek word is translated as SORCERIES. The Greek word thus translated is pharmakeia from which we get pharmacist. It is linked with the administration of drugs. It literally refers to enchantment with drugs.

Drug-taking and witchcraft are becoming ever more common and acceptable in society today.

The revelation that ISIS terrorists are using cocaine to nerve them for the atrocities in which they engage underlines the link between an ever-increasingly violent society with crimes against infants, the elderly and the vulnerable becoming every day occurrences. Here is a vivid illustration of the link between drugs and extreme violence.

It is the employment of drugs by satanic forces, at home and abroad, that motivates and incites wicked people to ever more depraved activities.

Kurdish fighters uncovered a bag of cocaine at the home of IS leader, Emir Abu Zahra, after killing him in a military operation deep inside the war-torn city of Kobane in Syria.

The discovery in the Botan neighbourhood suggests widespread drug use within ISIS which is very much against the doctrines and principles of Islam.

They believe Zahra distributed the drug among his fighters to boost morale - as ground assaults by Iraqi Peshmerga and bombing raids by the US Air Force begin to take their toll.

Abu Zahra was killed in the military operation which uncovered the bag of cocaine and an armoured laptop. Islamic State's propaganda videos have previously shown the extremist group whipping three drug addicts near the Syrian city of Damascus. The captions on the video being circulated suggested the men were being punished for taking illegal substances, in accordance with Sharia Law. Islamic State's religious police, known as the Hesbah, have previously been pictured burning a large supply of cigarettes near the IS-controlled city of Raqqa.

Despite the image they portray, there have been constant rumours of drug use within Islamic State ranks. The group's leaders are believed to drug their fighters so they fight more bravely, although their enemies suggest this inspires reckless and ineffective attacks. Kurdish fighters have reportedly found mysterious pills, capsules and syringes on both dead and alive IS fighters.

The dozen soldiers from the People's Protection Units (YPG), who carried out the raid on Zahra's home, also found an armoured Dell Latitude XFR laptop, which costs over £2,000. Kobane, on the northern border between Syria and Turkey, has been the scene of intense fighting between Kurdish and IS forces. Kurdish fighters have made great advances into IS territory in Kobane since the new year, thanks to aerial support from the US Air Force and artillery fire from Iraqi Peshmerga soldiers. ISIS were pushed back in the south and south-east, and retreated from both the Cultural Centre and the governmental square. The Kurds now control around 80 per cent of the city, according to the UK-based Syrian Observatory for Human Rights.
